

Marionette

The world you see is so brilliant
And it's offering you a million ways
And you're stumbling in into your life
Thinking it's a game

Pardon me for destroying this
Pardon me for letting you know
Just go on and time will show you
There's only one way for you to go

The wind of life will breathe into
Your face as well
And it'll show you the different seasons
And you have to go through it all

When you'll stay face to face with your former tomorrow
And you will ask yourself what it did to you
And the Marionette hangs her head down in sorrow
You'll feel that someone's chosen for you

So what's to say in the end my friend
Is it all worth fighting for?
Does the wind of life not allowed you
To choose for your own way?

Pardon me for not knowing this
Pardon me I can't tell
Just go on and try to cut these Threads of the Marionette